Brochure Supplement

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 4 Advisory Business

Beacon Capital, LLC, was founded in June 2002 by its two principals, Tamara A. Cronin and the late Robert B. Davies. The firm employs no other representatives or agents. Biographies are located at the end of this document in the section entitled “Brochure Supplement.”

We manage investment assets for individuals, their retirement and education plans, trusts, estates, and not-for-profit entities. We are generalists, primarily deploying clients’ assets in a combination of three asset classes:

- Equites: (stocks and equity mutual/exchange-traded funds),
- Fixed Income (bonds, preferred shares, and bond mutual/exchange-traded funds), and
- Cash Equivalents (U. S. Treasury Bills, money market funds, bank deposit accounts).

This management style is often referred to as “asset allocation” or “balanced” investment management. We do not generally participate in short-selling, commodities speculation, market timing, or other esoteric trading and investing strategies. Our strategies are long-term, and we have a risk-conscious bias. Beacon Capital, LLC does not participate in any wrap fee programs offered by outside broker-dealers.

Our practice is characterized and driven by the fact that we are usually the sole guardians of our clients’ nest eggs. Rarely do we manage a minor portion of a client’s investable assets. We are committed to preserving and protecting our clients’ accounts and growing them, which defines our commitment to their financial well-being.

We customize our portfolios to meet the individual needs of each client, whether such customization is dictated by withdrawal schedule, time horizon, investment preference, and/or risk tolerance. Clients with similar investment objectives will often own many of the same securities across their accounts. Clients are welcome to share their thoughts about the components of their portfolios and such input is considered in the management of our clients’ accounts.

In summary, Beacon Capital provides an individualized, professional approach to portfolio management by implementing the following steps:

- Communicate with clients to determine investment objectives, time horizon, liquidity needs, and tolerance for risk.
- Develop and implement portfolio strategies.
- Monitor economic and market conditions and account performance.
- Communicate regularly with clients to discuss investment strategy and confirm or alter investment objectives to meet clients’ evolving needs with a high level of personal service.
- Where appropriate, integrate our portfolio management services with clients’ tax, estate and retirement planning needs and work with their other advisors.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 5 Fees and Compensation

Beacon Capital is compensated for its investment advisory services by receiving a fee based on each client's assets under management, taking into consideration the type of management contract that has been mutually agreed upon.

Our most common contract is for a balanced investment objective, under which Beacon's fee amounts to annual compensation of 1% of the first $500,000 of the market value of securities and cash in the client's account, 3/4 of 1% of the next $2,500,000 and a fee to be negotiated for assets more than $3,000,000. Other objectives have different schedules as follows:

- Equity Investment Objective: 1.00% of the first $1,000,000 of assets under management, 3/4 of 1% of the next $3 million, 1/2 of 1% of the next $3 million, 3/8 of 1% of the next $3 million and a fee to be negotiated for assets more than $10 million.
- Specialty Investment Objective: 1.25% of the first $500,000 of assets under management, 1% of the next $1,500,000, and a fee to be negotiated for assets more than $2,000,000.
- Fixed Income Investment Objective: 0.75% of the first $500,000 of assets under management, .60 of 1% thereafter.

The preceding formulae constitutes the maximum permissible fee chargeable under the respective contracts. Under certain circumstances, at Beacon's sole discretion, the fee calculation may be adjusted to exclude certain assets or asset classes, which would result in a discounted fee. The nature and extent of the fee reduction shall be made available to the client upon request. The formulae above refer to discretionary management arrangements. All non-discretionary agreements are subject to negotiation at slightly higher levels (see Investment Discretion below). While the above schedules represent our standard fee arrangements, adjustments may be negotiated as circumstances warrant. In addition to the above fees schedule based on assets under management, Beacon Capital has in the past agreed to provide its services on an hourly basis when the normal fee calculation would produce an inequitable or distorted result. On these rare occasions, the fee is negotiated with the client and is generally payable quarterly in arrears.

Our preferred and prevalent practice is to arrange for the custodian of our clients' assets to deduct our fees from client accounts quarterly in advance. Alternative arrangements may be considered under special circumstances. In the event a pre-paid fee needs to be refunded due to the premature termination of the management agreement, we will prorate the fee for that portion of the quarter prior to termination and promptly return the unearned portion by check to the client or by credit to their custodial account.

The fee structures above constitute Beacon Capital's sole compensation. We receive no commissions, kickbacks, or other direct compensation from managing our clients' accounts. Under no circumstances are our fees computed based on a share of capital gains upon or capital appreciation of clients' funds, or any other variety of performance-based compensation. We do receive indirect benefits from the custodians who safeguard our clients' accounts. These benefits may include access to research and administrative tools that we can employ to better serve our clients' needs. (See Brokerage Practices.)

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 6 Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Beacon Capital does not charge nor accept performance-based fees, which are those based on a share of capital appreciation of a client's assets.

Beacon Capital does not engage in side-by-side management activities.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 7 Types of Clients

Our client base predominantly consists of high- and medium-high-net-worth individuals. We think of our clients not on an account-by-account basis, but rather as family relationships. Accordingly, we may manage several accounts for a single family: a taxable account, one or more IRAs, and one or more custodial, trust or educational accounts for the previous or following generation. Our portfolio management software permits us to combine family holdings into a single account for management and risk control purposes, where such an approach is warranted. We handle a few retirement accounts for sole proprietors and would be happy to assist employers with 401(k) or other corporate savings plans. Finally, we manage accounts for local nonprofit organizations. This requires balancing the short- and long-term needs of the charity within the investment portfolio.

In addition to these family relationships, which constitute the majority of our practice, we also specialize in assisting attorneys with assignments they receive from the Probate Court. These accounts may include estates conservatorships, trusts, and guardianships, which require special handling and often benefit from our reliably risk-conscious management approach.

While we prefer to solicit relationships that will generate annual fees above $2,500 per year, we do make exceptions if the prospects for continuing net contributions are solid, and the needs of the applicant are compelling. We recognize that our market niche is the vastly underserved population with investable assets below $1 million.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

We focus on asset allocation in developing client portfolios. We evaluate each client's risk tolerance, considering our market views, and divide the investable assets into acceptable proportions of cash equivalents, fixed income securities, and equities. Aggressive investors with the stomach for substantial volatility (ups and downs) will have a greater allocation to equities and a smaller piece dedicated to fixed income and cash reserves. Very conservative investors may be entirely allocated to cash equivalents and fixed income investments, such as Treasury Bills, investment-grade bonds, and preferred shares since these securities typically generate predictable income with lower volatility. For the largest portion of our client base, we arrive at an asset allocation that combines our perception of their desire for growth, their ability to weather market downturns, and their need for current income, all within our macro market view.

All our strategies involve some measure of market risk, which clients should be prepared to bear. The period of market turmoil during the 2008-2009 financial collapse illustrated these risks to all observers and participants. Investors in shares of the finest corporations in the world suffered through two years of significant paper losses, which were real losses if they had to sell those shares to satisfy their living needs. Even nominally safe municipal and corporate bonds lost significant percentages of their market values as market participants lost faith in the issuers' ability to meet their obligations and when a wave of selling from a variety of financial institutions pushed down prices. The major lesson of the period was that liquidity (the ability to turn a security into cash) was critical to financial survival. Accordingly, we usually recommend having some portion of our portfolios held in cash equivalents.

Our investment style is fundamental, as opposed to technical or quantitative. For our equity investments, we attempt to identify companies whose characteristics predict stable long-term growth and financial success. Our most reliable equity holdings often are those that have a history of regular dividend increases and share buy-backs. We are long-term investors. This bias results in two added benefits: extremely low transaction costs and maximum tax efficiency. We pay close attention to the size of our positions, and we trim back shares of our most successful holdings as they creep up over five percent of client portfolios. Rarely will we permit a single holding to reach ten percent of a client's portfolio unless special circumstances warrant such a position size. This discipline encourages balance and avoids the risks associated with concentrated stock holdings. Just as we pay attention to individual stock holdings, we also keep attuned to sector exposure. For example, if our combined energy or health care holdings get too large within any portfolio, we'll trim them back to avoid the added risk. This discipline also enables us to redeploy funds to undervalued areas of the market that are often ignored.

Our overall risk-conscious approach to market exposure has consistently played out with the following results: We do a good job of delivering results that meet or exceed the returns of our benchmark indices (The Lipper Balanced Fund Index and the Morningstar Moderate Allocation Index) because we outperform when the stock market is flat-to-down, and we may lag the major equity indices when the stock market is flying. As a result of this experience, we tend to attract a client base that isn't looking for short-term results, but rather risk-conscious investment returns over the long term.

The only investment strategy that deviates from the straightforward investment in stock and bonds is our Specialty Investment Objective, which engages in the selling of covered call options against long positions of stock held in clients' accounts. This strategy has been widely undertaken for decades and, while confusing to the uninitiated, is recognized as a very conservative and safer way to invest in equities than normal buy-and-hold investing. This strategy is employed only under a specific contract with the client and is not currently in use.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 9 Disciplinary Information

Beacon Capital LLC has never been the subject of any punitive regulatory, legal, or disciplinary action.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 10 Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Not applicable

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 11 Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

As Registered Investment Advisors, Beacon Capital, LLC has a fiduciary duty to avoid activities, interests, and relationships that might interfere with the duty to make decisions in our clients' best interests. Accordingly, we do not participate in any prohibited transactions, nor would any employees or agents of Beacon Capital if we had any.

From time to time, the principal of Beacon Capital, LLC, may participate in trades (for herself or relatives or other non-clients of the firm) simultaneously with Beacon Capital's clients. These trades are often executed as "block trades," where clients' orders to buy or sell shares or debt are aggregated and submitted to the broker as one large block. After the trades are completed, the block is broken up ("allocated") among the participants. We see no potential for conflict of interest in this type of circumstance and we engage in it regularly. However, if a principal traded for their own account before placing a similar trade for a client's account, that would be "front-running" and a prohibited transaction.

There is also potential for conflict of interest if a trade were to take place wherein the principal was a counterparty to a client's trade, e.g., the principal sold his/her (or a related person's) shares to a client or vice versa. This is also a prohibited transaction. Finally, Beacon Capital, on behalf of its clients or for its principal, does not participate in Initial Public Offerings (IPOs) or private placements of securities. As a result, potential conflicts of interest regarding the allocation of such investment opportunities among clients and principals are non-existent.

We maintain a record of all trades for our personal accounts and those of relatives and other non-clients of the firm. This file is reviewed by Ms. Cronin and available to the state banking department's examiner during their on-site audits. In addition, Beacon Capital has adopted a detailed Code of Ethics in accordance with SEC Rule 204A-1. We will provide this Code of Ethics upon request to any current or prospective client.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 12 Brokerage Practices

Beacon Capital, LLC may recommend that clients establish brokerage accounts with the Schwab Institutional division of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (Schwab), a registered broker-dealer, member SIPC, to maintain custody of clients' assets and to effect trades for their accounts. Beacon Capital is independently owned and operated and not affiliated with Schwab. Schwab provides Beacon Capital with access to certain institutional trading and custody services, which are typically unavailable to Schwab retail investors. These services generally are available to independent investment advisors on an unsolicited basis, at no charge to them, so long as a total of at least $10 million of the advisor's clients' assets is maintained in accounts at Schwab Institutional and are not otherwise contingent upon Beacon Capital committing to Schwab any specific amount of business (assets in custody or trading). Schwab's services include brokerage, custody, research, and access to mutual funds and other investments that are generally available only to institutional investors or may require a significantly higher minimum initial investment.

For Beacon Capital's client accounts maintained in its custody, Schwab does not charge separately for custody. Most clients pay no commissions of equity trades. Based on all the foregoing, we usually recommend that our clients select Charles Schwab as their custodian unless they have a contrary preference. Other custodians might offer more research or enhancements, but we believe the Schwab package best suits us and our clients. We participate in no "soft dollar" arrangements, wherein our clients' brokerage commissions are, in effect, subsidizing some benefit for, or compensation to, Beacon Capital, LLC.

Schwab also makes available to Beacon Capital other products and services that benefit Beacon Capital but may not benefit its clients' accounts. Some of these other products and services assist Beacon Capital in managing and administering clients' accounts. These include software and other technology that provide access to client account data (such as trade confirmations and account statements); facilitate trade execution (and allocation of aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts); provide research, pricing information, and other market data; facilitate payment of Beacon Capital's fees from its clients' accounts; and assist with back-office functions, record-keeping, and client reporting. Many of these services generally may be used to service all or a substantial number of Beacon Capital's accounts, including accounts not maintained at Schwab Institutional. Schwab Institutional also makes available to Beacon Capital other services intended to help it manage and further develop its business enterprise. These services may include consulting, publications, and conferences on practice management, information technology, business succession, regulatory compliance, and marketing. In addition, Schwab may make available, arrange and/or pay for these types of services rendered to Beacon Capital by independent third parties. Schwab Institutional may discount or waive fees it would otherwise charge for some of these services or pay all or a part of the fees of a third party providing these services to Beacon Capital. While as a fiduciary, Beacon Capital endeavors to act in its clients' best interests, and Beacon Capital's recommendation that clients maintain their assets in accounts at Schwab may be based in part on the benefit to Beacon Capital of the availability of some of the foregoing products and services and not solely on the nature, cost or quality of custody and brokerage services provided by Schwab, which may create a potential conflict of interest.

In summary, during her career in the investment advisory business, the principal of Beacon Capital, LLC, has been exposed to a broad range of broker-dealers. From the long-past days of full-service brokers to the commission-free brokers of today, there have been substantial changes in the services provided and the costs associated with those services. Our current opinion is that the financial advisor platform that Schwab offers, combined with their online resources, state-of-the-art systems, customer service, and other client-oriented applications gives Beacon Capital the best opportunity to provide first-class service and protection to our clients, while satisfying our obligation to meet the "most favorable execution" standard. Schwab has refined the business model and has a large, dedicated team providing trading and administrative support to many independent financial advisors, such as Beacon Capital, LLC.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 13 Review of Accounts

All client accounts are individually managed, consistent with the client's stated investment objectives and the firm's market outlook. They are regularly reviewed on an ongoing basis for adherence to our asset allocation standards, risk disciplines, and market developments. Clients receive written reports and commentaries from Beacon Capital at least quarterly. These reports always include a Portfolio Appraisal, which has been reconciled with the custodian's most recent statement, and a Statement of Asset Management fees which provides a detailed calculation of our quarterly fees. Additional reports vary during the year and with clients' preferences, but may include reports on Realized Gains and Losses, Income and Expenses, Performance Summaries, and the many other reports that our portfolio management system is able to generate. In addition, custodial brokers send monthly or quarterly statements, confirmations of each trade, and the IRS Form 1099 (and 5498, if applicable) after the end of the year. If desired, duplicate statements and confirmations can be sent to interested third parties, such as accountants, attorneys, and trustees, among others, as required by clients. Clients are advised at the outset that we can and will provide any report, at any frequency, and in any format that they desire. Finally, clients are urged to contact us if they have any questions or comments.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Beacon Capital does not directly or indirectly compensate non-employee consultants, individuals, or entities for client referrals. Existing clients are a regular source of referrals but there is no economic benefit to a client for any such referral.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 15 Custody

All client assets are held by independent, well-known, qualified custodians. Beacon Capital does not provide custodian services, nor do we have physical custody of any client funds or securities. Clients receive account statements from their custodian directly, usually monthly, but at least quarterly. In addition, Beacon Capital provides independently prepared quarterly appraisals along with a billing statement that details the calculation of its management fees. We recommend that our clients regularly reconcile their custodian statements with their Beacon Capital appraisals of the same date.

Per current Connecticut Department of Banking (CT DOB) regulations, third-party money movement authorizations via a Standing Letter of Authorization (SLOA) may be considered regulatory custody of assets by Beacon Capital. However, the most recent CT DOB Statement of Policy (November 2022) exempts investment advisors from this requirement if custody is only due to client SLOAs and all the conditions outlined in the Statement are met. It is our policy that all SLOAs and our procedures meet the requirements set forth in the CT DOB Statement of Policy.

The safety and security of our clients' assets are of the utmost importance to us, and we encourage clients to contact us if they have any concerns.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 16 Investment Discretion

All of Beacon Capital's clients have granted us full trading discretion; however, we have managed a small number of non-discretionary accounts under specific circumstances in the past. Discretionary authority is accomplished by the execution of a limited power of attorney form provided as part of the opening account documentation. Our experience has been that non-discretionary investment management results in inferior returns to fully discretionary relationships. The inevitable delay in obtaining trading authority and the inability to combine orders with our other clients on a timely basis has proven over the years to hurt results while adding to the administrative workload and increasing the opportunity for error. Accordingly, we prefer to agree on discretionary authority whenever possible and if not, to limit non-discretionary relationships to the first year of our working with a new client. If, after time, the new client is not sufficiently comfortable with our decision-making or some other aspect of our management to grant full discretion, we will revisit the investment management relationship with the client to determine if Beacon Capital is the right firm to meet their needs.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Item 17 Voting Client Securities

In January 2003, the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) promulgated new rules for all federally regulated investment advisors detailing increased obligations with respect to proxy voting. These new regulations are quite onerous and apparently designed for implementation by entities with substantial back-office support staff. Our regulator, the State of Connecticut Department of Banking, decided not to require state-regulated advisors to implement the new SEC rules.

Our approach to voting on corporate actions is simple: we vote with our feet. In general, we own shares in companies because we value their franchise, their prospects, and their management. If a company whose shares we own are embarked upon a course of action we feel will materially and negatively impact the value of the shares held by our clients, we will often simply sell the shares, rendering any voting moot. Some other matters of corporate governance may elicit our negative proxy vote if we still want to retain our ownership of the shares. If the corporate action is favorable, not contentious, or just routine business, we may vote affirmatively or not vote at all. As a practical matter, we rarely vote routine proxies.

If we are currently responsible for voting a client’s shares and our approach (including our practice of not voting in some circumstances) does not meet with any client’s approval, we have the client resubmit the custodian’s limited power of attorney form and amend same to withdraw voting authority from Beacon Capital and return it to the client. Otherwise, we assume our clients’ silence to signal their agreement to continue to follow the above proxy procedures. We send all our clients a copy of this policy once each year.

BEACON CAPITAL, LLC

Beacon has never been the subject of a bankruptcy petition.
